

The Archer Grand Prix

The Archer Grand Prix cycle race is part of the British Cycling Premier Calendar

History

The Archer Grand Prix has been run annually for over fifty years, organised by Stuart Benstead of the Archer Road Club (although Stuart Cook organised the 2006 event). It has been described by British Cycling as a "long running classic". The first edition was held in 1956 and won by British rider, Alfred Howling. 1968 saw the first non-British winner when Jan Krekels of the Netherlands won the race. The race has in the past, adopted the name of its main sponsor, including Harp, Pernod and Cycling Weekly.

Consistently routed around the roads and lanes of the Chiltern Hills, the most recent route is split into a large and small circuit. The large circuit starts in Hazlemere and takes in Whiteleaf Hill and Hughenden Valley while the small finish circuit includes the finish at Winchmoor Hill.
